

Edinburgh's own supermodel is in town – Eunice Olumide appearing on the Fringe

Eunice Olumide, MBE, is our very own supermodel and she will be back in town on Thursday to talk about the fashion industry.

She will outline the facts about sustainability, greenwashing, brands gone rogue, who is really in charge and what goes on backstage.

In typical straightforward style you can expect to hear the truth behind the fabulous dresses on the catwalk.

“She proves that you can engage and develop various elements of her career and protect the rights of others... one of the most famous activists in the modelling world” (Vogue).
