

Female water polo players pay tribute to Brian

Gael Logan, from Portobello, is pictured in action captaining the 2014 Scottish Commonwealth Championship women's water polo team against the current Scotland side.

The match took place during a festival of water polo in Dunfermline to commemorate esteemed coach Brian Campbell and also featured the second-ever girls tournament.

Joining Gael in the erstwhile Scotland team was Porty colleague, Victoria Witko, while Warrender's Neal Rayner acted as coach.

Compared to 2023, the girls entry increased from six teams to nine and Edinburgh representatives Warrender fulfilled their objective of improving on last time out.

This time Warrender finished fifth (compared to sixth) having clinched the place by defeating Cathal Brugha, one of three Irish representatives in attendance.

Another of the Irish sides, Clonard, went on to win the tournament, their victims including Warrender (12-8).
