

Final test for driving instructor Alistair

Edinburgh driving instructor, Alistair Allan, of Regent School of Motoring based in Pilton tore up his L Plates recently.

Blake (right) passed his test at the Currie Driving Test Centre on Halloween.

Alistair has taught learner drivers for 48 years, possibly the longest serving Approved Driving Instructor in Edinburgh. He began teaching with European School of Motoring based in Meadowbank. He initially worked from the small hut sited at Morningside Station, and set up his own driving school Regent School of Motoring in 1979.
