Christmas is coming

Bad weather will affect opening of some of Edinburgh's Christmas. The Polar Ice Bar and Coorie Inn on George Street will not open until the afternoon of 26 November.

But Santa Claus and his elves are ready to welcome families at St. Andrew Square where they can find Santa's Stories, a letter writing station and a post box with a direct line to Santa's workshop. Santa's Stories begins Saturday 23 November in the Piccolo Spiegel tent, with each visit ensuring kids get the opportunity to meet Santa himself before the big day, and take home their own present.

Also in St. Andrew Square, the all-new Christmas Tree Maze opens on Saturday 23 November, until 24 December. This immersive holiday experience, with tickets from £5, offers one of the UK's largest illuminated Christmas Tree walks.

Time to lace up your skates! Edinburgh's premier outdoor Ice Rink opens on George Street from the evening of Friday 22 November right through until Saturday 4 January 2025. With a covered rink, it could be the perfect festive activity, rain or shine for you.

Edinburgh's Christmas is now open featuring a jam-packed programme of festive family fun. Get ready for bright lights, Christmas tunes and mulled wine as the festive season kicks off. Last weekend's opening in East Princes Street Gardens welcomed 100,000 visitors during the weekend.

There is more to entertain you at Ross Bandstand (all free) this weekend.

A free bike event is being held in Macmillan Square (just next to the almost ready North Edinburgh Arts building) on Saturday from 11am to 1pm. Take your bike along and Dr Bike will give it the once over.

Also a family friendly bike ride around the area is planned (depends on the weather which does not look the best..). And there will be two cargo bikes to try out. No need to book a place just drop in.

And children are welcome but must be over 8 years old and accompanied by an adult.
