

Fort Kinnaird are looking for a Chief Christmas Officer

Fort Kinnaird is looking to rein in its first ever Chief Christmas Officer (CCO).

The lucky young recruit will bag a dream role, with the chance to try out the retailers and experiences at the centre for free, indulging in tasty festive treats and taking home Christmas goodies all in exchange for their review.

The new CCO will spend a big day out at the centre. They will watch one of the latest movies at ODEON Cinema to reviewing the new festive menu at Frankie & Benny's, with Fort Kinnaird's newest and littlest recruit rating their experience to make sure it's fit for a fun-filled festive season.

And the CCO will also get the chance to sample the new festive hot chocolate and treats at Hotel Chocolat and test out this year's most popular toys and gadgets at Menkind, with the lucky individual getting to take one home.

The ideal candidate for the role will be a fun-loving adventurer who loves trying new experiences and must be aged between six and twelve.

To apply for the opportunity of a lifetime, youngsters should ask their parent or guardian to email fortkinnaird.CC0@citypress.co.uk with their name, age and why they'd be the perfect candidate, by Monday 2 December at 23.59.

Liam Smith, centre director at Fort Kinnaird, said: "At Fort Kinnaird, we're constantly working to improve the experience of our visitors, and launching the quest for our new Chief Christmas Officer does just that – helping one lucky family to make unforgettable memories while ensuring our festivities are up to scratch.

“Whether you’re shopping for a new Christmas outfit, sampling the latest festive menus or catching a much-loved family-favourite on the big screen, Fort Kinnaird is the perfect place to enjoy a family day out, and our CC0’s suggestions will help us to make sure we’re giving visitors the best possible festive season.

“This once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for a child to become our new Chief Christmas Officer will be the ultimate test to see how we shape up, and we can’t wait to welcome the lucky recruit to the centre.”
