

Jack and Victor visit The Centre, Livingston to meet their fans

Still Game fans and shoppers alike were treated to a very special guest appearance at The Centre, Livingston on Saturday when Jack and Victor from Still Game stopped by to sign copies of their new comic book, “He Who Hingeth Aboot Getteth HeeHaw!”.

The event at the Born in Scotland store was their first stop on their book signing tour in the run up to Christmas.

Actors Greg Hemphill and Ford Kiernan signed hundreds of books and welcomed lots of budding fans of the award-winning show to join them for photos, including young Adler and Alex, who travelled all the way from Beattock in Dumfriesshire to meet their favourite actors, and also dressed up as the characters for the occasion.

Patrick Robbertze, Centre Director at The Centre, Livingston, said: “We were delighted to welcome Greg and Ford to The Centre, Livingston, especially being the only shopping centre in Scotland they are visiting to meet fans and sign copies of their fantastic new book.

“Fans travelled from as far as Inverness and south of the border to get the opportunity to meet their idols – there was such a great buzz in the air, and a lot of laughter too.”

Pic Greg Macvean 16/11/2024
The Centre, Livingston – Greg Hemphill and Ford Kiernan sign copies of their Still Game book at Born In Scotland

Pic Greg Macvean 16/11/2024
The Centre, Livingston – Greg Hemphill and Ford Kiernan sign
copies of their Still Game book at Born In Scotland

Pic Greg Macvean 16/11/2024

The Centre, Livingston – Greg Hemphill and Ford Kiernan sign
copies of their Still Game book at Born In Scotland