

Super league call for capital's wheelchair Giants

Edinburgh Giants wheelchair rugby league club have been confirmed as the first Scottish outfit in any variant of the sport to play in the Betfred Super League.

Pleasance-based Giants, founded only 21 months ago, will make their debut in June at home to reigning champions, Leeds Rhinos.

Others taking part are Wigan Warriors, Warrington Wolves, London Roosters, Sheffield Eagles, Halifax Panthers and Hull.

Inclusion in Super League recognises the progress the Giants have made since being formed in March, 2023, including reaching the Challenge Trophy final last April.

Giants' founder Martyn Gill said: "This is massive for the club and the sport in Scotland. We were only established 21 months ago and the majority of the squad are still brand new to the sport. It's exciting but it wouldn't have been possible without the hard work that has gone in off the pitch to build our infrastructure by a dedicated board, volunteers and the generous support of funders and key partners.

"We still have a long way to go but we have made a great start and hope people within the city buy into what we are trying to create and get behind us."

Edinburgh Giants celebrated their inclusion in Super League with a new kit launch.
