

The Best Entertainment Options for an Evening in Edinburgh: From Traditional Outings to Digital Alternatives

Edinburgh is bursting with many historic and cultural attractions, providing an unforgettable trip from beginning to end. However, after a busy day of exploring Edinburgh Castle, shopping along the Royal Mile, or exploring The Palace of Holyroodhouse, you might be eager for something fun to do once the sun goes down. If so, here are the best entertainment options for an evening in Edinburgh, from traditional outings to digital alternatives.

Photo by Jonathan Ricci on Unsplash

Connect with Locals in a Historic Pub

Edinburgh is home to many beautiful pubs steeped in history, which are a perfect way to spend an evening. For instance, The White Hart is the oldest and most haunted pub in the city, dating back to 1516. Located in the beating heart of Grassmarket, it is an ideal place to meet with locals, and the staff are more than happy to share the pub's spooky stories.

The World's End is another historic pub bursting with character and has a friendly atmosphere to help you unwind after a busy day of sightseeing. Also, you can enjoy some delicious food complemented by various cask ales. It's a must-visit after a busy day of exploring.

Go Stargazing at The Royal Observatory

If you're looking for a unique activity suitable for all ages in the Scottish capital, consider spending an evening at The Royal Observatory. The Victorian Astronomy Centre allows locals and visitors to pre-book tickets for telescope stargazing and a tour of the Victorian telescope dome. On a clear night, you can see the stars in all their glory from the flat roof. Plus, you will have an opportunity to ask questions and enjoy various astronomy activities.

Enjoy Digital Entertainment at a Luxurious Hotel

You will have many options to choose from when looking for a luxurious hotel in Edinburgh. After a busy day of exploring the city's historic landmarks and fun attractions, you might love nothing more than relaxing in a stunning hotel.

If so, The George Edinburgh is a smart choice, as it's located in the heart of the capital and offers stunning rooms that are perfect for watching TV or embracing some digital entertainment, such as swisscasino games. It's a must-do activity if you're more of a homebody. Plus, there is no reason to leave the comfort of your hotel, as you can enjoy dinner at its on-site restaurant or grab a drink at the sleek bar. You might never want to leave.

Other superb alternatives include W Edinburgh, The Scotsman Hotel, and The Sheraton Grand Hotel & Spa, to name a few luxurious hotels.

Watch a Play at a World-Renowned Theatre

Edinburgh is home to many world-renowned theatres that know how to put on a good show. It doesn't matter if you are looking for a good belly laugh or a dramatic tragedy; you will be spoilt for productions in one of its acclaimed venues. For example, you could book tickets to a play, musical, or dance performance at the Traverse Theatre, Edinburgh Playhouse, The King's Theatre, Royal Lyceum Theatre Edinburgh, or the Festival Theatre.

An Evening Ghost Tour

Edinburgh is believed by many to be home to many of the most haunted places in the world, making it perfect for an evening ghost tour. If you're not afraid of a spooky story about the city's gruesome past, it's a great activity to enjoy during the evening. The narrow, ancient streets will provide an ideal backdrop for the spine-tingling stories, which might remain with you longer after your trip to the city is over. Also, you could visit one or more of the city's most haunted destinations, such as Greyfriars Kirkyard, The Real Mary

King's Close, and the Edinburgh Dungeon.