

February exhibition opens at Upright Gallery

A new exhibition at Upright Gallery will show work by Amna Sheikh, a British/Pakistani artist whose practice celebrates the richness of her Pakistani cultural heritage.

In Patterns of the Past she explores the handmade, generational techniques and histories that have been carefully passed down in her family over the past 70 years.

Her art emphasises the enduring value of these craft traditions, intending to preserve them as digital technology increasingly overshadows cultural practices that rely on the human touch.

Amna Sheikh received her first award in June 2023 and since then she has been awarded many other awards such as the RSA Patrons Award, The Edinburgh Printmakers Residency Award, Glasgow Print Studio Award and The NHS Lothian Charity Tonic Arts Purchase Prize. Amna currently lives and works in Edinburgh, Scotland.
