The top reasons why Egypt is safe for women alone

Egypt is like heaven for solo female travellers. It is also enriched in the sense of the past and culture, plus it is very computerised and safety-ensured. The following are the top reasons:

1. Warm Hospitality and Respect for Women: Egypt is known for its warm hospitality, reflected even in treating visitors, whether solo women travellers or otherwise. Egyptians are generally friendly and respectful toward tourists, and most people will go out of their way to help someone or give directions when asked. Moreover, it is not unusual for locals to offer their help in understanding local customs or finding your way around a busy street.

2. Safe Tourist Attractions: Egypt has many tourists, and the government seriously considers foreign visitors' safety, especially around big tourist areas. Moreover, cities boast developed tourist infrastructures with many hotels, restaurants, and attractions that can accommodate solo travellers. All these areas are safe for women since increased police presence and regular patrols reassure the tourists of their security.

3. Places and Tours for Women: Egypt now sets aside spaces and tours only for women. A few travel agents have now set up group tours into Egypt that will take only women as tourists, helping them with other women travellers and under the care of a female guide. For many, it brings extra comfort because they do not have to enter a mixed environment. Women-focused tours include everything from cultural activities to providing safety during the trip.

4. Strong Presence of Female Tour Guides: Female tour guides and other female staff add further to the reasons for safety among solo women travelling in Egypt. Knowledgeable about Egyptian history, culture, and local etiquette, they can offer unique insights and make the journey even more enjoyable. Moreover, having a female guide will provide a sense of security because they are keen and very observant in terms of the needs of other females.

5. Growing Interest in Safety of Women: Over the last couple of years, Egypt has been making positive steps toward focusing on women's empowerment and their safety, especially in relation to tourism. The government and local authorities have strived to make a safer environment for female travellers. Ongoing police training and training for people working at places where tourists would go on how to handle incidents with women feeling safe.
