

Finn plans for life beyond rugby

Scotland's rugby team returns to Scottish Gas Murrayfield this month for an encounter with Wales.

Finn Russell is dipping his toe into the hospitality sector. And star stand-off Finn Russell is set to have an involvement OFF the pitch as well as on it.

In looking to business interests beyond his playing days Finn has signed up for event management company IGNITE to provide match day hospitality advice.

Finn says: "IGNITE is committed to creating unique and premium experiences and that's what really resonates with me. Rugby is more than just a game – it's about bringing people together to have a great time – and that's exactly what this partnership is all about.

“I can't wait to work with the team ... bring my perspective as an athlete.”

The company will continue to assist the My Name's Doddie Foundation, named in memory of former Scotland rugby cap, Doddie Weir, as it raises funds to aid research into Motor Neurone Disease.
