

Audiologist Louise Stewart joins Fairfield Hearing

Fairfield Hearing welcomes Louise Stewart to their expert audiology team. With a strong background in both science and audiology, Louise brings a deep passion for harnessing the latest hearing technology to transform lives.

Louise's journey into audiology is one driven by both science and a desire to help people. After earning a degree in Mathematical Physics in 2002, she worked in various roles, including volunteering with the Edinburgh Headway Group, a charity supporting people with brain injuries. Inspired by her love of working with people and a keen interest in problem-solving, Louise retrained as an audiologist, graduating with a BSc (Hons) in Audiology in 2012, and has since gained extensive experience in both NHS and private practice, specialising in complex hearing aid fittings and innovative hearing solutions.

Louise is particularly skilled in maximising the capabilities of cutting-edge hearing aids, using the latest advancements to personalise hearing solutions for each client. "Modern hearing aids are nothing short of incredible," she explains. "Today's devices use AI-driven deep neural networks to separate speech from background noise, providing clarity and comfort in even the most challenging environments. The rapid pace of technological advancement means we can offer solutions that go far beyond simply amplifying sound – hearing aids now actively support the brain in processing speech and making sense of sound.”

Louise is excited to bring this expertise to Fairfield Hearing, a clinic she admires for its patient-centred approach and commitment to delivering outstanding personalised hearing healthcare.

Having previously worked alongside Fairfield Hearing’s founders, Stephen and Ruth, she is looking forward to reuniting with them and being part of a team that shares her values. “Fairfield Hearing has a strong family feel, and I know from experience how dedicated Stephen and Ruth are to improving people’s lives through better hearing. It’s wonderful to be working with them again.”

“We are delighted to have Louise join us,” says Stephen. “Her technical knowledge, problem-solving skills, and enthusiasm for emerging hearing technology make her a fantastic addition to our team and a tremendous resource for our clients.”

Louise is eager to help more people experience the benefits of today’s advanced hearing solutions and encourages anyone concerned about hearing loss to take the first step. “Many clients tell me they wish they hadn’t waited so long to get hearing aids. The technology is now so advanced that it can truly change lives. If you’re struggling with hearing, don’t hesitate – come in and find out what’s possible.”
